

China Sets Limits on Russia Relationship After Leaked Documents Raise Alarm

In one of its most explicit statements yet, China pledged to set boundaries on its increasingly-close relationship with Russia, vowing not to sell weapons to either side of the war in Ukraine.

During a Friday news conference, Chinese Foreign Minister Qin Gang said, “China will not provide weapons to relevant parties of the conflict, and manage and control the exports of dual-use items in accordance with laws and regulations.”

Qin’s remarks come amid Western fears that Beijing could deliver military aid to Moscow despite China’s insistence that it is remaining neutral in the conflict.
