

Germany to intervene for Israel at ICJ; US, Canada say case is baseless

The United States, Canada, and Germany have expressed their support for Israel in the International Court of Justice's genocide hearing against Israel.

Germany will intervene on Israel's behalf as a third party in the International Court of Justice's genocide hearing against Israel, according to Steffen Hebestreit, the spokesman for Germany's federal government.

In a Friday press release, Hebestreit stated that while Germany supports the International Court of Justice in its work, it also supports Israel's right to self-defense and rejects the ICJ's accusation of genocide.

"The federal government firmly rejects the accusation of genocide made against Israel. It has no basis whatsoever," Hebestreit reiterated in a post on X.
