

In a hearing full of creepy Strzok moments, one has folks asking if it's 'actually real' ... It is.

For conservatives, disgraced FBI official Peter Strzok is the gift that keeps on giving.

Strzok has become a viral Internet sensation after making an array of bizarre smirks that creeped out millions of TV viewers and were immortalized in Twitter memes.

A woman named Holly Bowie posted a jaw-dropping video clip which showed a defiant Strzok looking hyper-defensive during his testimony before the House Judiciary and Oversight Committees. The committees have oversight of the FBI, where Strzok is employed.

Social media went wild because no one could believe the footage was real (it was). Bowie tweeted: "[This is] completely real. I personally recorded it from my tv. I was so shocked when I saw it and played it back...I couldn't believe it."

Peter Strzok was a deputy director of the FBI Counterintelligence Division who helped oversee both the Hillary Clinton email investigation and the FBI's Trump-Russia probe.

Last summer, Strzok was demoted from Robert Mueller's fruitless investigation of the 2016 Trump campaign after 50,000 anti-Trump text messages were uncovered.

In the texts, Strzok and his pro-Hillary mistress, former FBI attorney Lisa Page, repeatedly trashed Donald Trump, vowed to keep him from getting elected, and promised to undermine his presidency.

Peter Strzok and Lisa Page exchanged 50,000 anti-Trump texts while having an affair during Robert Mueller's investigation of Trump campaign aides. (FBI file photo, OSU)

As BizPac Review has reported, Strzok denied he was biased during his congressional hearing on July 12.

Republicans on the House Judiciary and Oversight Committees were shocked that Strzok repeatedly claimed that his anti-Trump bias did not affect his investigations of Hillary Clinton or Trump campaign aides.

Strzok got visibly angry during his fiery testimony, causing him to make some creepy and evil-looking facial expressions as the hearing stretched into the evening hours.

Strzok's bizarre facial gestures spawned numerous memes that spotlighted the credibility problems that exist in the upper levels of the FBI, which is stacked with anti-Trump Obama holdovers.

Mike Cernovich ✓@Cernovich
Would you trust Peter Strozok around your children?

Others zoomed in to declare they see "pure evil."

Republican Congressman Louie Gohmert exploded when 'smirking' Strzok kept insisting that "I have never lied under oath."

Josh Caplan@joshdcaplan

Rep. Louie Gohmert absolutely savages Peter Strzok: "I can't help but wonder when I see you looking there with a little smirk; how many times did you look so innocent into your wife's eyes and lie to her about Lisa Page."

Democrats have falsely claimed that Republicans are anti-FBI, even though GOP lawmakers have repeatedly said that they respect the rank-and-file members of the FBI. They're merely disgusted by the blatant anti-Trump bias displayed by the Obama holdovers in the agency's senior ranks. A Facebook user shared a hilarious video that showed Peter Strzok as Pinocchio, with his nose growing longer with each lie.

Source: <https://www.bizpacreview.com/2018/07/13/in-a-hearing-full-of-creepy-strzok-moments-one-has-folks-asking-if-its-actually-real-it-is-653844>

[Disclaimer]