

Man who rescued 2 dozen people during Buffalo blizzard awarded Super Bowl tickets by Bills legend

Jay Withey's efforts during a storm in Buffalo made him a hero.

Whoever said no good deed goes unpunished should have a word with Jay Withey.

Withey helped save two dozen people during a winter storm in Buffalo last month by sheltering them in a school. The Buffalo Bills and Highmark Blue Cross Blue Shield of Western New York, which sponsors the team, thanked him for his actions by posting a video Jan. 13 of retired Bills running back and Pro Football Hall of Famer Thurman Thomas and his wife, Patti, surprising him with two tickets to the upcoming Super Bowl in Glendale, Arizona.

Withey went viral for leaving a note of apology in the school for damaging school property while explaining he had to take drastic action to keep everyone safe.

"To whom it may concern, I'm terribly sorry about breaking the school window and for breaking in the kitchen," he wrote in his letter.
