

Metropolitan Police officer David Carrick pleads guilty to string of sex offences including 24 rape charges

PC David Carrick - who was known to his colleagues as “Bd Dave” - entered guilty pleas when he appeared at London’s Southwark Crown Court on Monday. He serves with the Met Police’s parliamentary and diplomatic command.

A Metropolitan Police officer has been revealed as one of Britain’s most prolific sex offenders after he admitted dozens of rapes and sexual offences following attacks on 12 women.

PC David Carrick - who was known to his colleagues as “Bd Dave” - entered guilty pleas when he appeared at London’s Southwark Crown Court on Monday.

He admitted 49 charges - including 24 rape counts - for crimes committed over an 18-year period.

The charges relate to the rape of nine different women, but some are multiple incident counts, meaning they relate to more than 80 sexual offences, including at least 48 rapes.
