

Narco-Terrorist Cartel Delivers Mother's Day Presents in Mexico

One of Mexico's most violent criminal organizations delivered small appliances as Mother's Day gifts to dozens of women in low-income neighborhoods. The deliveries arrived in various cities in the Mexican state of Michoacan as a way to earn public support.

The incidents took place this week in seven cities in the Mexican state of Michoacan where gunmen from Cartel Jalisco New Generation (CJNG) were able to move with complete impunity as they carried their rifles while they delivered the presents.

The gift deliveries took place in the Michoacan towns of La Piedad, Churintzio, Zináparo, Numarán, Yurécuaro, Tanhuato, and Zacapu.

Cell phone video recorded by gunmen and shared on social media captured the scenes as local women receive the appliances and some chant "Mencho" — the nickname of CJNG's leader Nemesio "El Mencho" Oseguera.
