

Numerous Migrants Photographed Wearing Biden Shirts at the Border

A group of migrants crossing the U.S.-Mexico border were photographed on Tuesday wearing T-shirts and carrying signs that said, "Biden please let us in!"

The migrants were photographed at the San Ysidro crossing port in Tijuana, Baja California, carrying signs and shouting slogans in support of President Joe Biden's proposed immigration policies, Fox News reported.

Biden is working to process as many as 25,000 asylum seekers who were waiting in Mexico under the Trump administration's Migrant Protection Protocol program.

There has also been a rapid influx of child migrants crossing the border, but the Biden administration has refused to label it a "crisis."

The number of migrant kids crossing the border is on pace to exceed the all-time record by 45 percent and the administration does not have enough beds to shelter them all, Axios reported.
