

TikTok shredded as influencers promote Osama bin Laden's 'terrorist propaganda' tirade dubbed 'Letter to America' after 9/11 attacks

The text of an inflammatory "letter to America" from 9/11 mastermind Osama bin Laden has gone viral on TikTok and drawn praise from young users — and US lawmakers from both sides of the aisle are blasting the China-owned app for promoting "terrorist propaganda."

In the letter, bin Laden claimed that he orchestrated the deadly attacks on the World Trade Center that killed nearly 3,000 Americans because the US "attacked us in Palestine."

Bin Laden called the creation of Israel a "crime which must be erased." He also claimed that the AIDS epidemic was "a Satanic American Invention" and objected to US companies allowing women to have jobs, fuming, "You use women to serve passengers, visitors, and strangers to increase your profit margins."
