Greetings from Tyler,

By the time most people saw the story it had already been debunked. When was the last time you saw the Secret Service release a statement about anything? You've got the limo driver and the agent and they're offering to testify under oath? This is the Anita Hill tactic, but it's not first person, she heard it from a friend. Maybe that's why hearsay isn't allowed in a real court of law. But this is not a court of law. You have to wonder what fantastic stories we'll be treated to as the Fall draws closer. No doubt the story has plenty of drama, even violence. As you try to envision it in your mind, it's a little difficult. Then you realize it's not true. Classic. But unlike Russian collusion or treason in a phone call, this one's crashed on takeoff, but the mainstream hasn't noticed.

The gal none of us had ever heard of is having her 15 minutes of fame, longer if the mainstream media has anything to say. If any of this were true she'd make a living on appearances and a book deal. This is going to be in the history books despite it's farcical nature. She'll either be a star or she'll be thrown under the bus.

What's up with Liz Cheney giving her comments from the Reagan library? (*Mark Levine says Trump haters occupy top positions on the Reagan library board*) It's an indisputable fact that Ronald Reagan turned this country around, after interminable humiliation from some Iranian whack jobs. Gas stations had lines around the block. There was rationing. Some are not old enough to remember, but it was depressing to say the least. America was perceived to be weak, and constantly humiliated around the world. Hardly any business was being done. That's what happens when interest rates go ballistic. Ronald Reagan brought in an era of patriotism and strength. He turned the country around. For his name to be associated with this travesty of nonsense is shameful.

Since when is an administration bent on punishing its own citizenry? The border news is so bad we don't want to hear it. Inflation is hurting everyone, especially those trying to make a living. But none of that is as important as the “insurrection” and how close we came to “losing our democracy,” to coin a phrase.

Not only is Donald Trump guilty, having “lost his mind,” grabbing for the wheel of his limo and trying to choke a secret service officer, he’s guilty of being insane and trying to overthrow the country. Just so that those who love and support him know what they’ve teamed up with. If he’s guilty of “insurrection” and all the rest, what does that make his supporters?

We’ve been lied to straight faced by these committees, the networks, the newspapers and realized they’re no good at eating crow. Instead of admitting what fools they’ve made of themselves with their sober proclamations and righteous predictions, they’re doubling down. The hatred for Trump and his supporters runs deep. You can’t believe in the Constitution and support Trump? Liz Cheney, with that familiar look on her face, has decreed it. Now we’ve heard everything. That’s about as desperate as it gets. It didn’t matter that the story was debunked as soon as it was told. Nevertheless, the committee was deeply distressed.

Do they not realize that the same players put the people of this country through years of this nonsense under the guise of Russian Collusion and the fake impeachment. Have we not seen all this before? They’ve decided the people of this country are gullible. If big names say something, repeated by the newspapers, the websites and the six o’clock news, it must be true. A glance at the mainstream media revealed bombshell headlines. You have to read nearly the whole article to find out that the actual first-hand witnesses say nothing of the sort ever happened. These sober hearings weren’t designed to glean truth. They were designed to be the last nail in the Trump coffin.

If the United States hasn’t been drawn into a proxy war in Ukraine, you’d never know it. The public pronouncements have become provocative, weapons and the money more so! So, who’s at war and why? None of our business. Leave that to the experts. Don’t think or say anything negative or some agency might send a swat team. Some White House spokesman has proclaimed our several predicaments less important than the future of the “liberal world order.” The what? “This is about the future of the liberal world order, and we have to stand firm.” Apparently everything’s already been fixed. Don’t you love when they tell you what it’s “about?” They’re committed and can’t go back now. It’s double down time, and it looks like the American citizen is hostage to the liberal world order, whatever that is.

Eventually these buffoons find out what pipsqueaks they are. But until then...

Mark
