

Weekly Update by Mark Armstrong - July 21, 2023

Greetings from Tyler,

Who does the media think they are, telling us what to believe all the time? We've watched in amazement as the angle is placed in the headline. They are literally telling us what we must think, or how we must view whatever situation. Whether it's the war in Ukraine, the pretender's corruption or the three separate cases that Trump now faces, they leave no doubt as to how you should look at it. Or whether you should look at it.

These guys from the top law enforcement agency have been testifying before the Judicial Committee this week, and they're making us question why we would view their agency as honest. They're telling their tale, how evidence the agency had in its possession was withheld by their bosses, how roadblocks requiring approval from a higher power were thrown up at every turn. One of them is an unimpeachable source, since he's stressed and married to a man. What's the left going to say now?

Meanwhile, there is apparent written PROOF of "under the table" deals with America's adversaries. It looks like the wheels are coming off the administration.

We've all seen the video, "I told them if they didn't fire the prosecutor (Shokin) they weren't getting the billion." Why did he brag, in front of everybody, that he leveraged American aid to get a prosecutor fired? Where was that? Ukraine!?!

Now there are calls for a Special Prosecutor. You mean, we'll have to wait for at least a couple of years, and nobody dares discuss it in the meantime? "That matter is under ongoing investigation, so, no comment." By now we know how this works.

The whistle-blowers testifying before a Congressional committee seem to implicate the highest law enforcement agencies in the land. If we can't trust them...

We know the news channels are not to be trusted. There is terribly damning testimony about official corruption, but the news-people want to talk about the cases against Donald Trump. If only they could keep the spotlight on him, catch him with facial expressions while speaking that seem to express guilt. If only! We're deep in uncharted waters. Who knows what they'll say or do. It will be interesting, because new ground is being broken.

Glenn Beck hyped something on his program today. He gave Fox News until the third hour to respond, just in case. It turns out that their employees have a portal where they can donate to the charity of their choice, and Fox will match their contributions up to $1,000. The Southern Poverty Law Center is on the list, and they regularly make claims against the channel. But the corker is that the Satanic Temple is on their list of charities. We'll see what they say, but odds are they won't address it at all.

Is the land full of bloody crimes? We probably don't know the half of it, but there are plenty of murders. Our big cities have places that the Police won't even go. There are several series on TV devoted to the solving of murders. It never ends. Now the news is on the case of a serial killer, and who knows how many victims may be involved?

We're at a crossroads in the United States. Will the Deep State prevail, and they'll just keep telling us what they want us to believe, and if we speak out, we will be banished as dangerous? That's pretty much the world we're living in, wouldn't our founders be amused.

We've still got the Bible. We'll trust in that. Thanks anyway.
