

Weekly Update by Mark Armstrong - June 16, 2023

Greetings from Tyler,

This week the pretender hosted some kind of gay pride event at the White House. It's not the first time the people's house has been bathed in rainbow lighting, hopefully it will be the last. Why must we all be complicit in such behavior? It's universal? No, regardless of how many times they say it, it's not even close.

There's some TV commercial airing, maybe you've seen it. It's declaring pride month, or whatever, and there are about 20 or 30 logos flashed on the screen for about half a second. Maybe they're not all that proud after all. Maybe they don't want to become the next target for a boycott.

CNN wrote an article informing it's readers that the fall in Target's stock price had nothing to do with a consumer boycott. It was just some right-wing publications trying to gin up emotions. According to the article everything BUT a boycott was responsible for their cratered stock. They never concede anything.

I've got to tell you about the Mexico soccer match. Officials couldn't get the fans to stop chanting "puto," so they finally stopped the game with minutes remaining. It appears all kinds of anti-discrimination wires were tripped. There are international organizations you never heard of, and they're not amused. Anti-discrimination rules have been broken! The crowd was warned, but couldn't help themselves. It must have been terrible! (/s) They were calling the American goaltender a male prostitute, but a quote attributed to Yahoo sports says it translates as "faggot." Oh, the hurt feelings! But wait. You mean, they're not proud after all?

The words that could not be spoken about the origin of COVID, turns out to be all true. Not only that, they're still conducting ridiculous experiments at our expense, every way you cut it. It's not beyond the realm of possibility that they try this again. Why on earth are we financing off the wall "gain of function" research, illegal in this country, in some Chinese backwater? Can somebody explain that?

Everybody knows President Trump has been indicted and arrested. If you've followed it closely you know that there is every opportunity for him and his lawyers to hand these prosecutors their hind parts as the case moves forward. Trump doesn't look worried. In fact he's defiant. They've nearly exhausted every available avenue trying to besmirch Donald Trump. Most of the guys who led the charge can barely show their faces, but they still stand behind whatever they said.

Comey, Clapper, Brennan, Stroz, Page, and people we never heard of. They must be very proud. Seems like pride is not an attribute that you'd strive for. It's not going to win any points Upstairs!

There is apparently a group that Alan Dershowitz identifies that will bring spurious cases against any attorney who represents Trump. They'll make accusations to ruin somebody's life, and keep them in court for the foreseeable future. Just what a respectable lawyer signed up for. So what's left to make sure that Trump never gets another shot? The mainstream media is deep in the tank, the corporations are on board. We're getting bombarded from all directions with this pride nonsense. Let me be clear. We don't think it's a game. We'd rather our society not champion perversions to make God mad. We don't want to be Sodom or Gomorrah. Thanks anyway.
