

Weekly Update by Mark Armstrong - 1 February 2019

Greetings from Tyler,

The mainstream media's hair caught fire this week. It seems that President Trump had the audacity to disagree with top "intelligence" officials who say Iran poses no nuclear threat. Evidence has surfaced that the regime is still working with tons of enriched uranium, but who dares dispute the infallibility of the intelligence agencies? And that's not the only dispute. The President's desire to bring troops home from Syria and Afghanistan is also misguided, the usual suspects testified this week. It wouldn't be the same "intelligence" agencies who said Russia helped Trump steal the election would it? Not the ones that vouched for the authenticity of the mysterious dossier?

The anchors and their guests are beside themselves. Who does he think he is to be disagreeing with experienced professionals with years of knowledge and experience? The fact that the President has questioned the NATO status quo really put his sworn enemies over the moon. The Senate minority leader (Chuck Schumer) urged the "intelligence" official (Dan Coats) to stage an intervention with the President for the sake of national security. The news anchors and their guest panelists wholeheartedly agreed. They're like a broken record on all this. They routinely call him a liar, a racist bigot and so on and on. But there's a slight variation on the theme. Maybe he's not a racist, personally. He's just adopted a crazy racist platform to appeal to his racist supporters. Maybe that's the explanation! It just couldn't be that he loves the United States and is trying against unbelievable odds to preserve our civilization. And those of us in fly-over country? We're beneath mainstream contempt.

After hearing the comments of the Virginia Governor/pediatrician, which no one could have missed this week, there's not a lot to argue about. His comments couldn't have been more casual or matter of fact. The living infant would be "kept comfortable" while a conversation ensued as to what the mother wanted to do next. It's just that simple and ordinary as far as Governor Ralph Northam is concerned. His defenders cannot defend what he said or how he said it, so they go on the attack about interference with women's rights.

They simply refuse to address what he said, and with good reason. These are the very same morons who recently wailed that children were separated from their parents at the border. The children! Remember? Never mind that those kids, in many cases, were subjected to terrible hardship and used as little more than props brought along to exploit loopholes in U. S. immigration laws. Often, they were separated from their “parents” because their parents were being criminally charged and locked up. Otherwise they’ve been loosed on the American public until a hearing two years out when nobody has any idea where they might be.

We see articles and “expert” panelists daily, alternately trying to explain the logic of their insane positions or more often just returning to their focus-group tested talking points in an ongoing effort to keep the masses deceived. We’ll see how this turns out, eventually. The madness of unlimited illegal immigration, free medical care for everybody in the United States and anybody else who can manage to get here, immoral inanimate objects (like border barriers), are some of their tactics to get us to help destroy our own beloved country. You talk about a convoluted definition of morality!

Border barriers are immoral, but infanticide should be codified into law? Free medical care for EVERYONE, except maybe the elderly who’ve outlived their usefulness, will cost three times the entire national budget, but so what? It’s the “moral” way to go, according to the new media stars promising the moon. The presidency of Donald Trump and the fact that fly-over country supports him has driven these people off their rockers. The “solutions” being proposed by self-righteous, godless socialists would make the leaders of collapsed authoritarian regimes proud. The darkest periods in modern history have been brought about by the very same feel good “solutions.”

How many times have we been told, “That’s not who we are as a people?” Some of us are a little weary of being lectured by tyrannical socialists trying make an emotional appeal about non-existent “victims.” The amounts of crime, drugs and long-forgotten diseases coming across the border are off the charts, despite what the left-wing and the media say. They just made one of the biggest crystal meth and synthetic heroin drug busts in American history in California, right after the load had come across from Mexico.

And have you heard? They’re calling it a typhus epidemic spreading across Los Angeles County. The governmental buildings in downtown LA are plagued with rats that carry infected fleas. The illness produces rashes, extremely high fevers and ferocious headaches. One of L A's top prosecutors has come down with it. The problem, they believe, is garbage on the streets. You can read all about it in an NBC4 report that dares not insult California state policies by concluding why they have this dangerous problem, or where it came from. It does sound a little like a third-world, uh, situation, does it not?

More "caravans" are on their way. An embedded reporter figures at least twelve thousand are on the march. It's frustrating. There will be an intervention all right. But not the one the critics expect. Make it a great Sabbath.

Mark

Source: <http://www.intercontinentalcog.org/fridayupdates.php>

[Disclaimer]